HIGH ROCK

GAZETTEER

High Rock Gazetteer

The rolling hills and craggy peaks of High Rock have long balanced between tradition and defiance, alliance and rivalry, thanks to the many small kingdoms that vie for control over their own chunk of the region. These days, those kingdoms, Breton and Orc alike, pay lip service to harmony as they have all been united under the Daggerfall Covenant. In truth, however, many of the High Rock rulers involved in the Covenant are still on the lookout for ways to pull one over on their historical rivals. Lately, there has been more reason to fear an outbreak of violence: a series of conflicts has shaken the region, almost as if an unseen hand is purposefully attempting to ratchet up the tension between these uneasy allies.

OVERLAND MECHANICS

Having endured centuries of strife between the Bretons and Orcs, in addition to many other rogue factions vying for power, the province of High Rock continues to endure frequent unrest.

At the start of the session, place a token on the 0 on the Unrest Track on the overland map. When triggering the Activate Province Effect step, increase or decrease unrest as determined by the day's symbol. When an encounter refers to unrest, it is referring to the specific number on the Unrest Track. In addition to the number itself, effects will commonly refer to the current unrest level. The unrest level is defined by the following ranges:

0-2: Peaceful

3-4: Tense

5-6: Dangerous

7-9: Chaotic

The effects of unrest are primarily felt in encounters and determine the strength of enemy skill: Native (Incite). Certain effects and encounters increase or decrease unrest. Immediately upon the completion of a side quest, the party may choose to decrease unrest by 5 - . Unrest cannot decrease below 0 and cannot increase above 9.

Increase unrest by 1.

Mages Guild

Session Snapshot: Fight several clashes as you travel to different landmarks around the map.

The Orc King Bazrag has asked the Mages Guild to help him deal with a powerful but undisciplined young mage in Wrothgar, and you have been selected for the task. As you journey to Bazrag's home settlement of Fharun Stronghold, you study the monarch's letter to the guild.

"Young Kharzug gra-Magul may have a lot of potential in magical circles, but many of my kinmen have little patience for her volatility," he writes. "She has a tendency to lose control of her fire magic, which has led to some brutal harassment from several other Fharun residents and complaints from many of the Bretons she's run across. I've been told that even now, she is holed up near the Stronghold after another run-in with the locals, and I'm afraid the situation is close to erupting into violence. I think she could use some guidance, perhaps under the custody of your guild. Right now, she's too much of a potential danger to herself and others."

Starting Location: Orsinium

Special Setup Instructions:

Set aside quest units: Kharzug gra-Magul and Dream Weaver Fedryn.

Quest Objective:

Travel to Fharun Stronghold and initiate the following clash (recommended by day 4).

Deploy Kharzug gra-Magul to Hex A. Deploy level 10: Bonelord to Hex B.

Each time a unit moves into a ★ hex, it is dealt 1 true damage. Enemies only move into ★ hexes if they must do so to reach their destination hex.

Kharzug gra-Magul is a companion controlled by the party. This encounter is failed if she is defeated.

Thieves Guild

Session Snapshot: Retrieve an artifact from a dungeon. Then, travel to a city and fight a clash as you are chased by an entity that grows more powerful as unrest rises.

The tavern hums with conversation as your broker takes a seat at the table behind you.

"We have a request from an official in the Mages Guild to retrieve an artifact – a black gauntlet, to be precise," he says. "It's supposed to be in The Doomcrag."

You pause for a moment. Once an old Ayleid tower, The Doomcrag has developed a reputation as one of the most dangerous spots in High Rock. Until recently, the cursed ruin housed a deadly relic called The Lightless Remnant, but after a misadventure resulted in the Remnant's removal, other bands of daring treasure hunters have been braving the ruin in search of magic items yet left behind.

You wonder aloud why this mage hasn't assigned one of his own guild members to the task, or even hired The Undaunted.

"It's obvious, isn't it?" the broker says. "This is for personal use. Off the books. We're not called the Rightful Owners Guild."

Starting Location: Wayrest

Special Setup Instructions:
Set aside quest units: Iudex Ovidius and Watcher.

Quest Objective:
Travel to The Doomcrag and initiate the Doomcrag dungeon. This must be done before the end of day 6, or the quest is failed.

During this dungeon, after each time a party member defeats an enemy, increase unrest by 1.

The cache is the gauntlet. After an adventurer successfully performs a lockpick check on the gauntlet, their turn and the round immediately end and the gauntlet is placed under their character chip (above their HP). If the lockpick check is unsuccessful, the cache is not removed. The lockpick check may be attempted again on a future turn.

Once an adventurer has picked up the gauntlet, proceed to Quest Step B07 without ending the current encounter.

Fighters Guild

A13
Complexity: 2

Session Snapshot: Travel from one end of the map to the other, managing unrest by fighting battles.

The Fighters Guild has selected you for this job because of your discretion and toughness. As you're ushered into the back room of the Rosy Lion, you're greeted by a young, handsome Breton man in his late teens or early twenties. When you sit across from him, he apologetically explains his situation.

"My name is Uthand Scoth," he says. "I know it might sound hard to believe, but I am the son of Princess Rapelle, daughter of the Traitor-King Ranser – or at least, that's what they tell me. I've had essentially no contact with my parents since my birth, though I've always been well-cared for, financially speaking. I was conceived right before Ranser's War, and obviously it was best for the royal family that my existence was never acknowledged."

He leans forward as he explains the reason for his Fighters Guild patronage.

"With recent events making a potential target of every High Rock citizen with royal blood, I have been looking for a way to get out of the region. I have no interest in politics and even less in being used as a pawn in some up-jumped noblemen's power play. However, I've received word that all of the region's major ports are being staked out by hired thugs on the lookout for a man matching my description. In my travels, I have made friends in Wrothgar, and I have acquaintances that a nondescript ship is available for my use should I be able to reach Pharun Stronghold. I simply require an able-bodied escort to get me to it."

His eyes dart around for a moment, as if he expects an eavesdropper.

"There is one other reason for my concerns," he mumbles, so quietly you almost have to strain to hear him. "I have seen... people. Following me around Daggerfall. I've heard their whispers, and I think I've almost fallen prey to their ambushes once or twice. On one such occasion, I chased after my would-be kidnapper. He escaped, but I found a scrap of parchment that had fallen from his robe. It read, 'With royal blood, the armies rise. Their leader shall regain his prize.'"

He shudders at the memory. "Will you help me?"

Starting Location: Daggerfall

Special Setup Instructions:

Set unrest to 5. Set aside quest unit: Morag Tong Assassin. If ☊ is 3+, set aside quest unit: Braig the Bloody instead.

Quest Objective:

Travel to Fharun Stronghold and initiate the following clash, using the end of session difficulty EP (recommended by day 12, initiates the end of the quest).

Resolve each of the following modifications in order, stopping after you have resolved the modification for the current unrest level.

Peaceful: None.

Tense: When calculating EP, temporarily add ☊ to the base difficulty XP value.

Dangerous: Add the set-aside quest unit to the EP and deploy him first.

Chaotic: Each adventurer's ready slots are reduced by ☊ for this battle.

Battle Map Setup:

Ongoing Step Effects:

You may not take Set Sail town square actions or gain fatigue to increase overland movement.

When you would initiate a peaceful or town encounter, you may choose to initiate the following clash instead. This is the escort clash. This clash may be completed multiple times.

Before deploying enemies for this clash, roll 1 D6. The first enemy deploys to the corresponding numbered hex, and subsequent enemies deploy to the next highest numbered hexes. After an enemy has been deployed to Hex 8, the next enemy deploys to Hex 1 and the process continues until the EP is depleted or until all numbered hexes are occupied.

If you are occupying an unstable landmark when you initiate the escort clash, resolve each of the following modifications, stopping after you have resolved the modification for the current unrest level.

Peaceful: None.

Tense: The first ☊ x 2 enemies deploy with +2 HP.

Dangerous: When calculating EP, temporarily add ☊ to the base difficulty XP value.

Chaotic: After all enemies are deployed, replace 1 level 1 enemy with a random level 10 enemy, if possible, adjusting its HP.

Dark Brotherhood

Session Snapshot: Choose to complete a number of "assassinations" that give you powerful rewards but increase the difficulty of the final clash.

The Dark Brotherhood has received four political contracts from the same anonymous (and well-paying) source. Usually, when the client performs the Black Sacrament, the job gets done, but when a goateed Orc named Ghuvv relays your assignment, he idly speculates that something fishy is going on with this particular commission.

"These four are all pretty high-ranking officials in their own cities, but beyond that, we can't discover any kind of connection," he remarks. "Probably not a coincidence that these cities are the four poles of political power in High Rock, and given some of the area's recent factional disputes, these deaths will likely create suspicions about some sort of power grab. Not that that's really any of our business, but if I were you, I'd be worried that this assignment might put a contract on your own head."

He hands you the names of the targets, cautioning you to use a different method each time. "Best people not believe the same personnel are involved with each job," he says. "Safer that way."

He cautions you to use your best judgment regarding how many targets to eliminate and gives you the rendezvous point to receive final payment. "There's a bonus for you when the job's done."

Starting Location: Daggerfall

Special Setup Instructions:

Set aside quest unit: Anchorite Deslandra. If 🎧 is 3+, set aside quest unit: Empowered Deslandra instead.

Quest Objective:

If an assassination attempt is failed, the quest is not failed. You may attempt a different assassination, but cannot attempt the same assassination twice. Each time you successfully complete an assassination, gain 3 XP during that day's Reward Phase and increase unrest by 2. You may proceed to Quest Step B16 at the end of any day, as long as you completed at least 1 assassination this session.

Assassination Methods:

Daggerfall - Frame them for a capital offense: Take 2 group town actions to set aside level 10: Breton Usurper (if 🎧 is 3+, set aside level 20: Breton Archmage instead). Gain the following Persistent effect: The next time there is an unoccupied enemy deployment hex after enemies are deployed in a clash or delve, you must deploy the Breton Usurper to that hex. If this enemy is defeated at the end of the encounter, the assassination is successful.

Orsinium - Attack their retinue: Take 2 group town actions to initiate the following clash. When deploying enemies, use as many 💀 enemies as possible. If the clash is successful, the assassination is successful.

Shornhelm - Kindlepitch arson: Take 2 group town actions to choose 1 adventurer to make a lockpick check 3-2-1 (5 - 🎧 attempts). If successful, the assassination is successful. Regardless of success, Shornhelm is closed for the rest of the session (log this in your campaign journal).

"Wish I had time to take this on myself," Lady Blade remarks as she tosses a pair of contracts on the tavern table. The Breton is legendary among Undaunted members for her bravery and especially her ability to hold her drink. If she's interested in a job, you'd better pay attention.

"Payout's likely to be high," she says. "You've got two interested parties, and the guild doesn't care which one gets the prize. You can go to the highest bidder, or—" she rolls her eyes "—you could try to decide on the basis of fairness."

You study the contracts. Neither has been signed yet. Judging by the dates, the first request came from Umatha, the curator of the House of Orsimer Glories. The museum is looking for Fennender, a legendary staff of Argonian make said to have been taken in combat by Orcish warriors centuries ago when they led a sortie into Black Marsh. The second request is from Concordia Mercius, the High Rock representative of Cyrodilic Collections, an organization dedicated to locating and cataloging Argonian relics. Mercius wants Fennender to be returned to the land from whence it came. Both contracts give clues as to where a dedicated adventurer might find the staff.

"One other thing," Lady Blade says. "These are open contracts, so if you want to score the staff, you'll be competing against every two-drake worm in High Rock to get it."

Starting Location: Orsinium

Session Snapshot: Complete three clashes as unrest causes increasing hostility.

Bodorn, the Outer Watch's operations leader, sits across from you at the Cloudy Drop Inn.

"We have contacts in the Thieves Guild who have alerted us to the existence of Iudex Ovidius, a mid-level Imperial official within the Mages Guild. They have informed us of a recent run-in with Ovidius that suggests he is working with former Outer Watch member Deslandra and her splinter group, the Soldiers of the Void. We have learned that Ovidius has been attempting to install Soldiers of the Void agents in the various kingdoms of High Rock, allowing him to activate valuable assets if the need for a coup arises. We need you to find the key officials who are part of his operation and... take them out. And if you can find and deal with Ovidius, all the better."

He grimaces.

"Eliminating rogue government agents is pretty far afield from what we founded the Outer Watch to do, but rooting out corruption is right on the money, and what could be more corrupt than a shadow government?" he says. "Deslandra can't be allowed to gain a foothold here. I'll try to requisition more of the Watch's resources for charitable work in the region. It's the least we can do after the chaos you're about to sow."

Starting Location: Wayrest

Special Setup Instructions:

Set aside quest unit: Iudex Ovidius.

Quest Objective:

Successfully defeat at least 2 rogue government agents by traveling to Camlorn, Evermore, Northpoint, or Orsinium and taking a group town action to initiate the clash laid out in Setup A (recommended by day 9). You may not initiate the clash in the same town twice. After initiating a clash, log it in your campaign journal and note whether it was successful.

When initiating a Setup A clash, before calculating the EP, increase unrest by 1. Then, decrease the calculated EP by the current unrest (to a minimum of 1).

Depending on the town where the battle is taking place, deploy the following enemy to Hex A. These enemies are the rogue government agents.

Camlorn: level 20: Lich

Evermore: level 10: Breton Usurper

Northpoint: level 10: High Elf Necromancer

Orsinium: level 20: Orc Warlord

The first 2 times this encounter is successful, gain 2 XP during the day's Reward Phase. For any additional successes, only gain 1 XP. The first 2 times this encounter fails, the quest is not failed. If this encounter is failed 3 times, the quest is failed.

Battle Map Setup A:

Once at least 2 rogue government agents have been defeated, travel to Daggerfall and take a group town action to initiate the clash laid out in Setup B, using the end of session difficulty EP (recommended by day 12, initiates the end of the quest).

Deploy Iudex Ovidius to Hex A. Iudex Ovidius gains enemy skills: Colossal, Native, Necromancy, and Shatter. However, depending on which agents were defeated, he loses the corresponding skills:

Camlorn: Necromancy

Evermore: Colossal

Northpoint: Native

Orsinium: Shatter

Ongoing Step Effects:

Session Snapshot: Visit conflict landmarks as a malevolent cult makes your journey more difficult. Then, complete a battle in an ever-changing delve.*

A Breton Psijic named Calis pulls you aside and asks for your assistance with a fact-finding mission.

"You've no doubt heard of a group called the Supernal Dreamers that is currently plaguing Stormhaven," he said.

"They are a cult of the Daedric prince Vaermina, and they believe the only way to stave off the chaos facing Tamriel is to plunge the land into a living nightmare controlled by their lord. They can operate in the dreamstate, allowing them to feed on the lifeforce of those they imprison in the unconscious realm. We have been monitoring their activity, but as of late, a new member has come to prominence."

He hands you a parchment with a drawing of a Breton man with severe burn marks on his face.

"This man is named Fedryn, but he calls himself the Dream Weaver," Calis explains. "We have it on good authority that he is coordinating elements of the Dreamers under his control to work with another cult, this one called the Soldiers of the Void."

He frowns. "We don't know much about this other group yet, and we'd like you to investigate what they're up to. I'm going to provide you with a list of locations where this Fedryn has been seen recently. Try to discover what he's been after, but be warned: If Fedryn catches wind of your mission, he may try to trap you in a nightmare of his own creation."

Starting Location: Daggerfall

Special Setup Instructions:

Log the landmarks where successful encounters are completed in your campaign journal.

Ongoing Step Effects:

When an adventurer takes an inn town action, they must leave dice in their cooldown track equal to the number of chips in the exhaustion stack (they do not recover any dice if the amount of HP in the exhaustion stack is greater than or equal to the number of dice in their cooldown track).

On days when you visit a conflict landmark, after the Adventurers Rest step, add 1 HP chip to the exhaustion stack and choose to Stay Awake or Fall Asleep. Do not trigger this effect on a day in which you initiate the Fall Asleep clash.

Stay Awake: Each adventurer must gain light fatigue equal to the number of chips in the exhaustion stack. Then, add an additional chip to the exhaustion stack.

Fall Asleep: On the next day, skip the Overland Phase and initiate the following clash for the day's encounter.

All side quests and persistent effects are ignored for this clash. Dream Weaver Fedryn is deployed to Hex A, with the exhaustion stack serving as his HP. Dream Weaver Fedryn cannot lose HP or be defeated.

Place a stack of HP chips equal to unrest +1 in 1 ★ hex of your choice. This is the dream totem, and it may be targeted and damaged like an enemy. After an adventurer defeats the dream totem, they wake up from the dream and are removed from the battle map. The dream totem is then placed with its full HP in the furthest unoccupied hex from its previous location.

This encounter is immediately successful when the the last undefeated adventurer wakes up. If the encounter is successful, gain 1 XP during the day's Reward Phase and remove 1 chip from the exhaustion stack. Set Dream Weaver Fedryn aside again with the exhaustion stack.

Agents of Chaos
Eyes of the Queen

Session Snapshot: Boost unrest and complete a dungeon.*

Rezzun-dar meets you in the pre-discussed location, a back room in the cellar of Skalar's Hostel.

"Glad you didn't have trouble finding the place," the Eyes of the Queen leader says with a smile. "Raz has a job that needs to be handled delicately."

The Khajiit sits on a barrel and puts his feet up on a crate as he continues to talk.

"The Eyes of the Queen are many in High Rock, but lately, these Eyes are being plucked out," he says. "Someone has been assassinating, turning, or otherwise neutralizing our agents in the region, and we need to fight back."

He hands you an inventory of operational parameters. "We have traced this espionage work to a group calling itself the Soldiers of the Void," he explains. "This group does not want its presence revealed publicly, so we want to cause a little chaos on their behalf. This one needs you to arrange a series of... this one will call them 'incidents,' each one tied back to the Soldiers. Hopefully, this will force a confrontation with their leadership, and we can take them out."

He winks. "And if we can reinstall some of our agents in the confusion, all the better."

Starting Location: Orsinium

Special Setup Instructions:

Quest Objective:

Increase the unrest level to Chaotic (recommended by day 9).

Ongoing Step Effects:

Throwing Down

Circle of Champions

A34

Complexity: 1

Session Snapshot: Complete three clashes that get harder as unrest rises.*

You find yourself in Wayrest, where anticipation is high for the High Rock Throwdown, a new fighting tournament established by the Circle of Champions. Small teams of combatants from around Tamriel have traveled to the region for the chance to compete in the single-elimination tournament, but your interest is piqued when you're contacted by Eveli Sharp-Arrow, a Wood Elf who suggests you join the competition with an ulterior motive. She meets you at a small tavern to chat.

"I've grown quite attached to High Rock, and I make it my interest to do good here wherever I see the opportunity," she says. "I have a contact, a Redguard who calls himself Bodean, who believes some kind of criminal enterprise plans to infiltrate the Throwdown. He says the operation is the work of a former acquaintance of his – a Wood Elf like me, but without my easy grace and charm," she winks. "Only thing is, he's not sure what she's after. You've got a good reputation and you can obviously hold your own in a fight, so how about putting a team together to join the tournament and do a little investigative work? I'm even willing to help you out, should you be so inclined."

Starting Location: Wayrest

Special Setup Instructions:

Select either quest unit: Eveli Sharp-Arrow or quest unit: Bodean to become a drafted fighter. Your drafted fighters will be temporary companions in all quest clashes. If ☊ is 3 or fewer, draft more fighters until ☊ + drafted fighters equals 5 (including the drafted quest unit). For the first additional fighter, draw 2 random level 1 💀 enemies from the bag and choose 1 to keep and 1 to discard. For the second additional fighter, repeat this process but with random level 5 💀 enemies. For the third additional fighter, repeat this process but with random level 10 💀 enemies.

Quest Objective:

Travel to Camlorn and initiate the following clash (recommended by day 4).

Only deploy enemies to Hexes 1-4. Then, calculate a new EP as normal, but divide it in half, rounding down. Using this new EP, deploy enemies to Hexes 5-8. When deploying enemies, use as many 💀 enemies as possible.

Party members use the ★ hexes for deployment instead of the entrance tile.

Resolve the following modification matching the current unrest level:

Peaceful: No modification.

Tense: Adventurers must collectively discard ☊ items (or as many as possible).

Dangerous: Adventurers must collectively discard ☊ x 2 items (or as many as possible).

Chaotic: Adventurers must collectively discard ☊ x 3 items (or as many as possible).

B02 Bearer of the Curse

Mages Guild

You arrived in Fisaran to find Kharzug already in trouble, as a mob confronted her for accidentally frying a herd of domesticated echatere. Though you managed to beat back her attackers and take her into the comparative safety of your camp, she's not particularly happy about it.

"I see how it is," she grumbles. "The guild only takes interest when it thinks I'm going to sully its noble profession."

You attempt to assure her that this is not the case, but she still eyes you with suspicion.

"Since you're here, I may as well tell you that things have gotten worse lately," she explains. "I think my magic is being tainted somehow. Usually, when I have one of my... outbursts, it's preceded by an odd sort of dream. It feels more real somehow, and when I come to, I'm often in the middle of some sort of damaging ritual or spell."

She shakes her head in frustration.

"I've been doing some reading, and there are stories of ancient totems in High Rock that may be able to help me," she continues. "They were said to be blessed by Vaermina, the Daedric Prince of Dreams. I think these totems might allow me to maintain more control during these episodes, but I haven't been able to travel far on my own. Since you're apparently my security for the time being, would you mind making yourself useful and helping me find these relics?"

You pause to consider. The Mages Guild request was pretty open-ended, so leadership would probably accept such a detour.

Special Setup Instructions:

If there is at least 1 Orc adventurer in your party, the following interaction occurs:

Finally taking notice of you beyond your Mages Guild attire, Kharzug relaxes a little upon identifying a fellow Orc.

"Smart for one of my own to be here," she remarks. "Anything else, and you'd have all of Wrothgar calling foul. Not easy to believe the guild cares much for our kind."

She apologizes for her hostility and invites you to share her belongings.

"I've been called volatile before, so perhaps this will soften the blow when I hit you with a fireball," she jokes. "Of course, the Bretons will be suspicious when they see an Orc helping a fellow Orc."

Each adventurer draws a . Increase unrest by 2.

Quest Objective:

Obtain 2 High Rock totems by successfully completing encounters while occupying 2 of the following landmarks: The Doomcrag, At-Tura Estate, Glenumbra Moors, and Aldcroft. You may not use the same landmark twice. If an encounter at 1 of these landmarks is failed, the quest is not failed. You may attempt another encounter at that landmark on a future day.

If any of these encounters results in a battle, add the current unrest to the calculated EP.

After each time an encounter at 1 of these landmarks is successful, set aside a token to represent that a totem has been collected. Once 2 totems have been collected, travel to Northpoint and initiate a town encounter (recommended by day 12, initiates a clash and the end of the quest). During the encounter, each adventurer must take an inn town action. Then, proceed to Quest Step C03 without advancing the Day Dial.

Ongoing Step Effects:

Quest unit: Kharzug gra-Magul remains a companion controlled by the party, even if defeated in battle. Rather than deploy at full HP, she maintains her HP after a battle and heals to full HP after the Adventurers Rest step. For each HP she heals, each adventurer must gain 1 light fatigue.

You make it to the area indicated in your contract and find an ancient chest, just as described. Upon opening, the chest displays a chunk of smooth, black mineral. You reach out to grab it, and it snaps to your hand like a leechtooth eel, enveloping your fingers until it takes the shape of the gauntlet you were after. A surge pulses through you, but not one of power or magic – one of dread. You attempt to put the mineral back, but it cannot be moved from your hand. A shadow emerges from the darkness. Only one thought comes to mind now: run.

Special Setup Instructions:

Set the Round Counter to 1 and continue the encounter from the start of the round.

Deploy a stack of HP chips to the closest unoccupied hex to the adventurer with the gauntlet. This is the Death That Walks. The number of HP chips the Death That Walks deploys with is determined by the unrest level at the time of deployment:

Peaceful: 1

Tense: 2

Dangerous: 3

Chaotic: 4

Quest Objective:

The Death That Walks is not considered an enemy. It cannot be dealt damage (including true damage) or affected by any game effects. At the end of each round, it moves up to 3 hexes toward the adventurer with the gauntlet. It may move through units. If the adventurer is occupying a different floor, instead of moving, the Death That Walks places itself in the closest unoccupied lettered hex to the adventurer. After its movement (even if it doesn't move), it rolls 1 enemy Combat die for each HP chip in its stack and deals the rolled result as true damage to all adjacent units.

This encounter is successful at the end of a round in which all undefeated adventurers occupy the entrance tile. This encounter is failed if the adventurer with the gauntlet is defeated. If successful, remove the Death That Walks and place it to the side of the map. The adventurer with the gauntlet at the end of the encounter retains the gauntlet.

Clearly, whoever contacted the Brotherhood for this job is tying off loose ends, not content to trust the guild's discretion. You search the other body for clues and find correspondence linking the robed figure to a Wood Elf with deep pockets. Quest Objective:

Immediately initiate the following delve. During setup, for each enemy that was set aside in the previous step, you may draw 1 delve card and reveal its tile. Draw and reveal cards one at a time, placing tiles as if you are exploring the delve normally. Deploy enemies and place skyshards and caches as normal, but ignore all When Revealed effects and discard any cards with trap or environmental effects (after placing their tile). If a tile cannot be placed during this setup, do not gain a skyshard (but it still counts toward the number of delve cards drawn).

Gain + 2 skyshards. After the last skyshard has been gained, place a token on a cache chip of your choice in a hex that is not occupied by a unit. If there are no cache chips in play, place a cache in the furthest unoccupied hex from all adventurers and place a token on that cache. This cache is the relic. When an adventurer successfully lockpicks the relic, discard the drawn item and place the cache chip underneath their character chip (above their HP). If the lockpick check is unsuccessful, the cache is not removed. If the adventurer carrying the relic is defeated, the relic is placed in the hex they were occupying. Another adventurer may pick it up by moving into its hex (no lockpick check is required).

This encounter is successful at the end of a turn in which the adventurer carrying the relic is occupying the entrance tile.

DREAM WARRIORS B28
Psijic Order

Your investigations have yielded much. The Soldiers of the Void have interests across Tamriel, but in High Rock, they are primarily interested in researching the possibility of mass necromancy, potentially allowing an adept in the magical arts to command a legion of the undead. Fedryn apparently has been promised a portion of these undead soldiers as a personal honor guard, allowing him to better assert Vaermina's will.

Despite your discoveries, you are worn out almost to the breaking point. The Supernal Dreamers have been alerted to your work, and your nights are dogged by sleeplessness or the threat of fatal nightmares. Fortunately, in the course of your efforts, you've also learned more about how the cult gains control over the dreamstate. You decide that the only way to free yourself from Fedryn's torment is to seek him out in his home territory, striking at him in the midst of his own nightmare.

Quest Objective:

Travel to the remaining conflict landmark that you did not complete an encounter at during the previous step, and initiate the following delve, using the end of session difficulty EP (recommended by day 12, initiates the end of the quest).

Instead of the entrance tile, place a random 7-hex tile and deploy there. Ignore all environment and skyshard effects on delve cards this encounter. When a skyshard is gained, decrease the Round Counter by 1. If you are playing on Apprentice difficulty, each adventurer may heal for 1 HP each time a skyshard is gained.

In Session 1, after gaining the second skyshard, deploy quest unit: Dream Weaver Fedryn to the closest unoccupied hex to the adventurer who gained the skyshard. In Session 2, he deploys after the third skyshard is gained instead. He deploys with all of the HP in the exhaustion stack, plus additional HP equal to his Health stat. If Dream Weaver Fedryn cannot target an opposing unit after his Move step, he is placed in an unoccupied hex adjacent to the weakest party member. Then, he determines his target(s).

At the start of each round, each tile that is not occupied either by an adventurer or by Dream Weaver Fedryn is removed, and all units occupying removed tiles are defeated. Dream Weaver Fedryn gains 2 HP (may exceed his Health stat) for each unit defeated in this way.
If Dream Weaver Fedryn is not yet in play, add 2 chips to the exhaustion stack instead.
The removal of delve tiles can make previously explored hexes explorable again.

After Dream Weaver Fedryn is defeated (and cannot trigger quest unit skill: Penumbra), immediately proceed to Quest Step C29 without ending the current encounter.

AGENTS OF CHAOS B32
Eyes of the Queen

Raz strokes his chin as he considers the Eyes' next move.

"Your work has paid off, but not in the way this one would like," he says. "We just received a tip that the Soldiers of the Void are working on some kind of project at The Doomcrag, that old Ayleid tower up in Rivenspire. Clearly, this comes from inside the organization, an attempt to woo our agents to a battlefield of their choosing."

He looks you hard in the eye.

"Then again, the Eyes are already recouping strength in the region, and we will be able to provide you ample backup. With a bit of cleverness – and you have at least a bit of cleverness, or else Raz would not have recruited you – we should be able to break up whatever operation they have going on up there."

Quest Objective:

Travel to The Doomcrag and initiate the Doomcrag dungeon, using the end of session difficulty EP (recommended by day 12, initiates the end of the quest).

At the start of the dungeon, the party gains a collective total of 3 bonus HP for each side quest completed in Quest Step A31 and logged in your campaign journal, divided among adventurers as you choose. Then, if the number of completed side quests logged in the journal is equal to or greater than ☊ + 1, quest unit: Razum-Dar becomes a companion controlled by the party.

Before deploying random enemies, deploy quest unit: Xivilai Moath to the cache on Floor 3, quest unit: Watcher to Hex 5, and quest unit: Corrupted Creature to Hex A1 on Floor 1.

Enemies on floors that party members have occupied still take turns regardless of whether party members currently occupy their floor. If an enemy takes a turn when there are no party members on its floor, its destination hex is the closest unoccupied hex that would allow it to transfer 1 floor higher.

Resolve each of the following modifications in order, stopping after you have resolved the modification for the current unrest level.

Peaceful: None.

Tense: Adventurers must gain 1 additional light fatigue each time they take an additional engage.

Dangerous: When an adventurer transfers floors, they must spend ☊ tenacity, drain ☊ available skill dice, or deal themselves ☊ true damage (they may split between the 3 options).

Chaotic: At the start of the battle, deploy a random level 5 enemy to Hex A2 on Floor 1, Hex B2 on Floor 2, and 1 of the caches on Floor 3.

Ongoing Step Effects:

Skip the Activate Province Effect step each day. Completed side quests are no longer logged in your campaign journal and now affect unrest as described in the High Rock Gazetteer's Overland Mechanics.

You've put many anxious nights behind you, always uncertain whether Kharzug would sleep soundly or burst into flames. However, as you've located the totems, her condition seems to have improved, and you've come to respect the fierce intelligence behind the Orc's brusque exterior. Eventually, the Mages Guild sends you a missive recommending that Kharzug bring the totems with her to an enclave in Skyrim, where her condition can be studied more closely and hopefully cured. Even Kharzug is feeling hopeful, and she permits herself a mug of mead at the Sloshing Tankard to celebrate her impending voyage from the Northpoint harbor the next day.

One mug becomes another, and slowly you feel the tendrils of inebriated sleep wrap you in their warm embrace. As you drift off, you hear a harsh voice, but it is not enough to rouse you from your slumber: "Bearer of this curse, such power you possess. Seek eternity with us, lest these fools we'er let you unleash your potential."

Your eyes snap open, and you know something is wrong. Your surroundings are draped in a purple haze, and before you stands a group of threatening figures. Their leader, a Breton man with a scarred face, steps forward and addresses Kharzug. The Orc looks around and notices with a start that you are here with her.

"You have uncovered Vaermina's relics for us," the man intones. "You have served the Supernal Dreamers in your affliction, though you did not know it. Walk in the realm of the unconscious, as we do, and aid us as we use these totems to conquer death – for what is death but the wakeless sleep? Nothing is impossible for Vaermina."

You see Kharzug's eyes darting to and fro, taking stock of her surroundings. You suspect that this man has provided an explanation for her strange dreams of late.

"If I decline?" she asks with a half-hearted facade of politeness.

"Then you will be imprisoned in an endless slumber until Vaermina finds need of nourishment," the leader says.

Kharzug smiles. "I kind of hoped you would say that." An ember lights up on the end of her staff.

Quest Objective:

Immediately initiate the following clash, using the end of session difficulty EP.

Deploy quest unit: Dream Weaver Fedryn to Hex A with HP equal to unrest (may exceed Health stat). Deploy quest unit: Kharzug gra-Magul to Hex B. Place stacks of ☊ + 1 HP in each ★ hex. These are the Dream Snares. Dream Snares can be targeted and damaged like enemies. Units may move through Dream Snares.

Kharzug gra-Magul starts this battle as a companion controlled by the party, but she cannot take turns, be targeted, or be dealt damage (including true damage) while any Dream Snares are in play.

Dream Weaver Fedryn cannot lose HP. On his turn, Dream Weaver Fedryn does not move or engage, but instead rolls a number of enemy Combat dice equal to the number of Dream Snares in play. He removes HP from Kharzug gra-Magul equal to the amount of damage rolled and gains it (may exceed Health stat).

Then, for each miss rolled, a Dream Snare of your choice gains ☊ HP. Dream Snares do not have a maximum HP. If no Dream Snares are in play when Dream Weaver Fedryn would roll, either place a Dream Snare or a random level 5 enemy in the closest unoccupied hex to Kharzug gra-Magul.

The first time Kharzug gra-Magul is defeated, she heals to full HP and becomes an enemy. The Dream Snares are removed from the battle map, and their remaining HP is added to Dream Weaver Fedryn (may exceed Health stat). Both Kharzug gra-Magul and Dream Weaver Fedryn now take damage and turns as normal enemies. If Dream Weaver Fedryn is defeated when Kharzug gra-Magul takes her turn, she becomes a companion controlled by the party again.

This encounter is successful at the end of a round in which all undefeated adventurers and quest unit companions are occupying the entrance tile, or all enemies are defeated. If Kharzug gra-Magul is still in the party at the end of the clash, proceed to Quest Step E04 at the end of the day. If she is not in the party or is defeated, proceed to Quest Step E05 instead.

After you escape The Doomcrag, you are startled by an ethereal message conjured into being before your eyes:

"Thank you for your service," the message reads. "I am Iudex Ovidius, he who contracted for the gauntlet's retrieval. Payment for services will be rendered at the metropolis of your choice. I will know the place you select." The letters fade as quickly as they appeared.

You'd hoped the sense of dread would subside when you returned topside, but the clutching fear remains. Casting your mind back to the old tales of The Doomcrag, you remember the story of the Death That Walks, an unspeakable being who follows those who attempt to breach the tower. As it pursues you, it is said to drain years off your life. Though you managed to leave The Doomcrag unscathed, you still feel the chill of the Death That Walks on your spine, and you feel as if the gauntlet bound to you must be the culprit. It would be best to get it removed as soon as possible, but if this Ovidius wants it, to what possible end could he wish to employ it?

Quest Objective:

Travel to Daggerfall, Orsinium, or Wayrest. After completing a town encounter, set aside the gauntlet and proceed to Quest Step D09 before advancing to the day's Reward Phase (recommended by day 12, initiates the end of the quest).

Ongoing Step Effects:

If the result is equal to or less than the current round (Fatigue = 6), the Death That Walks deploys to the furthest unoccupied hex from that adventurer. Adventurers may adjust the rolled result by any amount (to a maximum of 6, minimum of 1), with each adventurer gaining light fatigue equal to the amount by which the die is adjusted.

The number of HP chips the Death That Walks deploys with is determined by the unrest level at the time of deployment.

Peaceful: 1

Tense: 2

Dangerous: 3

At the end of each round, it moves up to 3 hexes toward the adventurer with the gauntlet. It can move through units but cannot end its movement in the same hex as another unit. After its movement, it rolls 1 enemy Combat die for each HP chip in its stack and deals the rolled result as true damage to all adjacent units.

The adventurer with the gauntlet may transfer the gauntlet to an adjacent adventurer as an action on their turn. Quest Objective:

Travel to Wayrest and initiate the following clash, using the end of session difficulty EP (recommended by day 12, initiates the end of the quest).

Only deploy enemies to Hexes 1-4. Then, calculate a new EP as normal, but divide it in half, rounding down. Using this new EP, deploy enemies to Hexes 5-8. When deploying enemies, use as many 💀 enemies as possible.

During Round 1, each adventurer skips their Recovery step.

Resolve the following modification matching the current unrest level:

Peaceful: Each adventurer must exhaust 1 available skill die (if possible).

Tense: Each adventurer must exhaust 2 available skill dice (or as many as possible).

Dangerous: Each adventurer must exhaust 3 available skill dice (or as many as possible).

Chaotic: Each adventure must exhaust all available skill dice from their skill line that currently has the most available skill dice.

Battle Map Setup:

Ongoing Step Effects:

During quest clashes, the drafted fighters become companions controlled by the party. Like normal companions, they deploy at full HP and are permanently removed from the party if defeated.

You find an abandoned side tunnel near the city's Outlaws Refuge, and you're surprised to see that a man who identifies himself as Ovidius is already there, along with several acolytes in dark gray robes. There is also, much to your consternation, a Daedric Watcher present, shivering with fury but constrained by a magic circle.

The aging Imperial stretches out his hand, and the gauntlet loosens and falls to the ground. A sack of coins materializes next to you.

"You may go," Ovidius grunts.

As you turn to leave, however, one of the hooded acolytes holds up their hand.

"Judex, you have defied our mistress for too long. We know you have your own designs on this gauntlet, and Deslandra's patience has run out." They turn toward you. "Unfortunately, you must be eliminated as well."

Suddenly, the magic circle dissolves; the watcher lunges toward you.

"Quickly!" Ovidius calls to you. "Hand me the gauntlet and let us defeat these fools together!"

You hesitate for a moment. You want to save your skin, but from what you've seen in the last few minutes, you don't particularly like the idea of any of these parties getting their hands on an incredibly powerful magical artifact.

Quest Objective:

Resolve 1 of the following options:

1. Turn over the artifact to Ovidius. Proceed to Quest Step D10 without ending the current encounter.
2. Reject Ovidius. Proceed to Quest Step D11 without ending the current encounter.

Ovidius may be a disreputable mage, but you've dealt with his type before, and you could use all the help you can get against a watcher and an army of cultists. You kick the glove to him and watch as he puts it on. His eyes go black, and you wonder if you've made a grave sacrifice in exchange for your life.

Quest Objective:

Immediately initiate the following clash, using the end of session difficulty EP.

Deploy quest unit: Iudex Ovidius to Hex A and quest unit: Watcher to Hex B. Place the gauntlet underneath Iudex Ovidius's chip (above his HP) and set the Round Counter to 3. Iudex Ovidius becomes a companion controlled by the party. The Watcher can only be targeted and dealt damage (including true damage) by Iudex Ovidius or the Death That Walks.

At the start of Iudex Ovidius's turn, if the Death That Walks is not in play, roll 1 D6. If the result is equal to or less than the current round (Fatigue = 6), the Death That Walks deploys to the furthest unoccupied hex from Iudex Ovidius. Adventurers may adjust the rolled result by any amount (to a maximum of 6, minimum of 1), with each adventurer gaining light fatigue equal to the amount by which the die was adjusted.

The number of HP chips the Death That Walks deploys with is determined by the unrest level at the time of deployment.

Peaceful: 1

Tense: 2

Dangerous: 3

Chaotic: 4

The Death That Walks is not considered an enemy. It cannot be dealt damage (including true damage) or be affected by any game effects. At the end of each round, it moves up to 3 hexes toward Iudex Ovidius. It can move through units but cannot end its movement in the same hex as another unit. After its movement (even if it doesn't move), it rolls 1 enemy Combat die for each HP chip in its stack and deals the rolled result as true damage to all adjacent units.

The encounter is failed if Iudex Ovidius is defeated.

"You fool!" Ovidius bellows. "You've all fooled!" A cold blue aura emanates from him as he rises into the air, preparing to rain punishment down on his enemies.

Quest Objective:

Deploy quest unit: Iudex Ovidius to Hex A and quest unit: Watcher to Hex B. Place the gauntlet underneath the Watcher's chip (above its HP).

Iudex Ovidius is an opposing unit to all other units and takes his turn before adventurers. Iudex Ovidius gains enemy skill: Divert. When he is reduced to 1 HP, he is immediately removed from the battle map.

The Watcher can only be dealt damage (including true damage) by Iudex Ovidius and the Death That Walks. If the Watcher is defeated, the gauntlet and the Death That Walks are removed.

As the last totem cracks, everything goes black. When you open your eyes again, it is morning, and the bartender glares at Kharzug and you, just a few more patrons sleeping off a night of too much drink. As Kharzug snaps awake, the first thing she does is scramble for her pack, rooting around inside until she finds what she's looking for.

"Just as I suspected," she says, holding up the totems, each of which has been scorched through, as if by a bolt of fire. "The totems weren't aiding my sleep. Those cultists were using them to manipulate me this whole time."

No physical sign of the Supernal Dreamers can be found in Northpoint, so you suspect that anyone you defeated in the previous battle is likely still out there. With that in mind, Kharzug hastily boards the Northpoint boat, hoping that her sojourn to Skyrim will keep her away from the cult's influence until she has better control of her abilities. As she boards, she offers you a begrudging "thanks," but you can tell your help was much appreciated.

In Session 1, choose 1 of the following options:

- If you decide to confront the Supernal Dreamers head on, select the High Rock Psijic Order Quest for Session 2.
- If you want to check in on Kharzug's progress in Skyrim, select the Skyrim Mages Guild Quest for Session 2.
- If you turn your attention to a different magical anomaly, select the Valenwood Psijic Order Quest for Session 2 (requires Valenwood expansion).

In Session 2, you notice that your dreams continue to stir. While Kharzug is safe in Skyrim, you seem to be the new target of these ethereal phantoms. Though the mysterious Dream Weaver never makes an appearance, you believe he is enraged by your intervention and is attempting to lure you as an alternative to Kharzug. You resist these dreams and vow to fight back, discovering that this Dream Weaver is operating on his own, outside the normal purview of the Supernal Dreamers, alongside a group known as the Soldiers of the Void. Proceed to the High Rock endgame quest.

You wake, and Kharzug is gone. You saw her fall victim to some strange ritual in your dreamstate, and you could not rouse her from it while still making your escape. All that's been left behind is a chunk of stone emblazoned with a variety of fell symbols, apparently a remnant of the snares the Dreamers used to trap you in your own unconscious mind.

The Mages Guild is disappointed, although Kharzug's removal from Wrothgar is still viewed as a positive development by King Bazrag. Still, you can't help but feel as if you let Kharzug down, and in the coming days, you keep wondering if there isn't something more you could do for her.

In Session 1, choose 1 of the following options:

- If you decide to confront the Supernal Dreamers head on, select the High Rock Psijic Order Quest for Session 2.
- If you track down Kharzug and attempt to wrest her from the Dreamers' control, select the Hammerfell Mages Guild Quest for Session 2 (requires Hammerfell expansion).
- If you decide to assist the guild in a different capacity, select the Skyrim Fighters Guild Quest for Session 2.

In Session 2, the loss of Kharzug haunts your dreams, proving even more disruptive to your sleep than the Supernal Dreamers. This restlessness drives you to study everything you can about these Dreamers and their goals in High Rock. As you dig deeper into the Dream Weaver in particular, you uncover his connection to a group called the Soldiers of the Void. From what you can gather, Kharzug is a key piece of a ritual the Soldiers are planning in High Rock. Hopefully, with the emblazoned stone that was left behind, you can disrupt this ritual and save Kharzug – and if it's too late for her mind, at least you can save her from a life under someone's thrall. Ovidius has disappeared in the chaos, and the gauntlet is destroyed. The bag of gold remains, however, so you stumble back to the Outlaws Refuge, dazed but richer. Sometimes, when you do a job, you don't learn anything other than not to do it again.

This whole messy affair has likely burned Ovidius's connection with the Mages Guild, and you suspect that if he survived, he and the mistress of these cultists probably made nice. You know well enough from your career as a thief that partners in crime often fall out and then come back together as soon as they realize their erstwhile rival has something to offer. If anything, Ovidius's brush with death could have increased his loyalty. If he couldn't topple his rival, then he'll likely serve as her most fervent lieutenant – at least until the next opportunity for betrayal comes along.

In Session 1, choose 1 of the following options:

- If you decide to track down Ovidius, select the High Rock Outer Watch Quest for Session 2.
- If you just want to try not to do the same job twice, select the Elsweyr Thieves Guild Quest for Session 2 (requires Elsweyr expansion).
- If Ovidius's mischief inspires you to bust some magic-wielding heads, select the Cyrodiil Fighters Guild Quest for Session 2.

In Session 2, the discovery of Ovidius's betrayal prompts a full investigation by the Mages Guild. Letting your curiosity get the better of you, you manage to swipe the findings of this investigation, connecting the rogue mage to the Soldiers of the Void. The Death That Walks, however, is nowhere in the report. You resign yourself to the fact that the gauntlet will be forgotten by history, as will its role in Ovidius's schemes. Despite the menacing intentions on Uthard's life, you manage to safely see him off to Pharsus. You're actually a little sad to see him go; he's a well-spoken, intelligent individual, and he's genuinely grateful for your assistance.

"As long as this boat doesn't sink, I'm on my way to Summerset," he says. "Look me up if you're ever in the area. And send me a letter if you ever figure out what the people who were stalking me were after." He thinks for a moment.

"I probably should have mentioned this earlier, but that note I found – it was scribbled on a torn-out page of an obscure tome. I tracked down the volume. It was called... what was it? Ah! That's right. 'Ancient Battlefields of High Rock.' Didn't see much of a connection at the time, but maybe you can make something of it."

In Session 1, choose 1 of the following options:

- If your travels in High Rock give you the insight to decide who should receive a valuable cultural artifact, select the High Rock Undaunted Quest for Session 2.
- If your run-in with Uthard's pursuers gets you in the mood to fight some cultists for the Guild, select the Cyrodiil Fighters Guild Quest for Session 2.
- If you would like to check up on Uthard, select the Summerset Mages Guild Quest for Session 2 (requires Summerset expansion).

In Session 2, you follow up on Uthard's lead and track down the book he mentioned. Conversing with your fellow fighters, you learn that mysterious cultists have been causing issues for the guild at many of the battlefields mentioned in the books. One of those locations is Glenumbra Moors, the now-haunted site of a particularly bloody conflict. Another is the ruined Ayleid tower known as The Doomcrag. Despite your close call, you acquitted yourself admirably in the execution of your targets' execution, and you now find yourself in possession of several artifacts these cultists looted in the wake of the violence in High Rock's various capitals. There are more jobs with the Brotherhood if you want them, but with the increased political turmoil you've recently created in the region, a wide array of opportunities are open to those with a good weapon and a bit of initiative. Day 1

You've traveled long and hard for clues about these so-called "Soldiers of the Void" and their traffic in supernatural goods under the cover of unrest in the province of High Rock. Your sleep is wracked by disquieting dreams of these gray-cloaked cultists. When you awake, you find yourself at the entrance to The Doomcrag, the cursed Ayleid ruin where much of the cult's activity seems to have been focused. Cautiously, you step inside and see that your sleuthing has paid off: your eyes are immediately drawn to the Wood Elf Deslandra, who you've learned is the leader of the Soldiers of the Void. Next to her stands another imposing figure, his face in shadow, his body clad in the robes of another cult, the Daedra-worshiping Supernal Dreamers. He glances your way and, spotting you, winks out of existence, much to your shock. Deslandra, on the other hand, affixes you with an evil eye.

"You will meddle no longer," she spits.

Encounter Setup:

Set unrest to +1. Set aside quest units: Iudex Ovidius and Kharzug gra-Magul.

Set up the Doomcrag dungeon using the end of session difficulty EP. Deploy quest unit: Lich Deslandra to Hex A1 on Floor 1 and quest unit: Dream Weaver Fedryn to Hex B1 on Floor 2. If either Hex 7 or Hex 8 are unoccupied after deploying enemies, deploy a random level 1 enemy to each that is unoccupied.

Encounter Rules:

Party members cannot transfer from a floor that Lich Deslandra is currently occupying. Enemies never transfer floors.

After Lich Deslandra is defeated by an adventurer, all other adventurers must roll a status die and gain the rolled result. After Lich Deslandra is defeated by any means, decrease the Round Counter by 1.

When a unit triggers quest unit skill: Penumbra, they replace the weakest allied non-quest enemy on the same floor. If there are none, they replace the weakest allied non-quest enemy on the next floor higher. They are unable to replace allied units on lower floors.

Day 2

You're tired, confused. This journey through The Doomcrag has made no sense. Enemies disappear before your eyes, only to appear elsewhere in this cavernous ruin. Nothing is functioning as it should, but finally, you've reached the summit, and you strike the killing blow to Deslandra.

And then, you wake up, your face splintered by its hours long rest on the rough-hewn wooden table in this out-of-the-way Daggerfall tavern. No Doomcrag, no Deslandra. Only the dread of a bad dream, no doubt cast upon you by the Supernal Dreamers you spotted in your unconscious vision.

The battle may have been a dream, but Deslandra's plot is no mere nightmare. You rack your brain and pore over the clues, knowing your time is running out. Everything points to Deslandra wanting to summon an army of the undead to accomplish her ends, but where could she hope to acquire such a force so quickly? While The Doomcrag holds many secrets, a legion of corpses is not among them.

Casting your mind back, you recall the tale of the Battle of the Glenumbra Moors, one of the bloodiest conflicts in Tamrielic history. Local chatter portrays it as a heath where you're just as likely to stumble upon a corpse as a shrub. If Deslandra has the ability to raise such an army, the site of the battle is where she would do it.

Judging by the distraction laid upon you by the Dreamers, you're sure you'll need to rush to intervene before time runs out, but you could hardly call last night's rest invigorating.

Encounter Rules:

Set the Round Counter to 1.

To prepare for the next battle, you may choose any number of times to increase the Round Counter by 1 or increase unrest by 2. Each time you do this, each adventurer may remove 1 die from their cooldown track and also do 1 of the following:

- Heal for 1 HP.
- Gain 2 bonus XP.
- Refresh any 1 expended in their inventory.

If there is a Knight in the party, when increasing unrest during this step, only increase it by 1 instead of 2. If there is a Ranger (VW) in the party, when the Round Counter would increase this step, roll 1 D6. Only increase the Round Counter if you roll a 4 or higher.

The Round Counter does not reset when setting up the next day's battle, and higher unrest will mean that more skyshards must be found before Deslandra is revealed.

Day 3

Breathless, you reach Glenumbra Moors, afraid you're too late. As you predicted, you find Deslandra here, already engaged in necromantic rituals. Bodies pop forth from the loam like grisly flowers. You call out an appeal to the Wood Elf's better nature, and she turns to face you, an otherworldly glint in her eye.

"Trust me, I don't wish to disturb these souls any more than you do," she says. "The greater good at times requires the participation of the unwilling. I need ample protection and enforcement to accomplish my work of severing Tamriel from the realms of Aetherius, and my Soldiers of the Void are not enough. These brave fallen warriors will be. Don't worry, when magic is banished from this world, no one will be able to disturb their rest ever again."

You stare back defiantly. She sighs.

"Very well," she says. "Clearly, you'll have to take my word for it. Maybe you'll even have to join them." The revived bodies start to lurch in your direction.

Encounter Setup:

Set up the following delve using the end of session difficulty EP, placing the clash tile adjacent to the entrance tile as shown, as well as 2 specific 3-hex delve tiles with icons matching those shown in the diagram. No enemies deploy to these 2 tiles during setup, but caches are placed as indicated. Deploy quest unit: Iudex Ovidius to Hex A and quest unit: Kharzug gra-Magul to Hex B. Non-quest enemies deploy with HP equal to the current unrest, not exceeding their Health stat.

Scout adventurers may treat this setup as a clash for the purposes of their innate class ability.

Encounter Rules:

Initiate the following delve.

When a non-quest enemy is defeated while it is occupying the clash tile, its chip is flipped so that the opposite side's enemy is now faceup and remains in its hex. Enemies with 0 HP do not take turns, nor can they be targeted. They may receive healing and function as normal upon being healed. At the end of each round, all units with 0 HP heal for HP equal to the current round (may exceed Health stat).

hexes on the delve tiles are explored as normal. Enemies deployed to delve tiles deploy with HP equal to the current unrest, not exceeding their Health stat. After each time a skyshard is gained, you may decrease unrest by up to 2. At this time, you may decrease unrest by an additional 1 if each adventurer gains 1 light fatigue. This may be done multiple times. If a skyshard is gained while unrest is at 0, quest unit: Lich Deslandra deploys to the closest unoccupied hex to the adventurer who gained the skyshard. She deploys with full HP. Once Lich Deslandra has been deployed, no additional delve tiles can be explored. Lich Deslandra ignores enemies with 0 HP when triggering quest unit skill: Penumbra.

Each adventurer gains the following class ability:

Purify Corpse : Remove an enemy in range with 0 HP from the battle. The tenacity cost for this ability is equal to the Health stat of the enemy. When triggering this ability, adventurers may untrain stat tokens or skill dice from their attribute area, reducing the tenacity cost by 1 for each stat token or skill die untrained in this way.

Epilogue

The dead have been restored to rest, now joined by many who were recently among the living. Your first thought is to seek the assistance of the Lion Guard to bury the freshly unearthed corpses littering the battlefield. It's grim work, but you take solace in the fact that you prevented these honored dead from once again being wielded in aggression. They deserve more peace than Deslandra would have given them.
